March 2023 Newsletter

President's Plasma Cutter

from the desk of Joshua Powell,
SCAEA President

Hello South Carolina Art Educators!

Happy Youth Art Month to all of you who make this month happen! While our regional Youth Art Month exhibits are happening all over the state, I know that many of you are also involved in shows in your districts and counties at the same time. I appreciate the work that you do, that we do, to highlight and celebrate the work our students do.

In the midst of all the craziness, we are looking forward to all 2023 has in store for the South Carolina Art Education Association. I'm already focused with our executive committee on our upcoming fall conference. This year's theme is "One Love," and I have been focused on the alliterative words: perspective, passion, and persistence. Also the question "why do we do what we do?" and "who is our why?" repeatedly are on my mind as I consider how art education impacts the lives of our students, their families, and communities Infusing our two passions of visual arts and our students together creates the one love we all share. Save the date: November 17-19th, 2023 in Greenville, SC.

Sincerely,

Save The Dates

Month of March

Women's History Month

Women's History Month is here. Why is studying women's history so important for our students?

Completes our history lessons. Many writers of historical documents and textbooks were men, which has resulted in women's voices and experiences being left out of many historical documents and therefore our history lessons.

Emphasis on women's history fills the information gap and adds more perspectives to essential events.

Builds students' confidence. Students who see themselves represented as accomplished women from history can build confidence in their abilities. Women's history lessons motivate students to challenge themselves in new ways.

Encourages critical thinking. In the age of unlimited access to information, students need to be able to evaluate information and apply that information to their relevant situations. Lessons on women in history bring more perspectives to the table and teach students to think critically about sources, information, and decisions.
